Officially, it must be recorded as a ball game. Actually, it was a mishap. As a result of the mishap, Richmond is credited with another victory, Roanoke being the victim at this writing. The score was 5 to 1.

On quite a few occasions the Richmond baseball-going public has been treated to superlative brands of hurling. Usually a chronicle of that kind carries the name of Doctor Yancey Wyatt

Ayers somewhere in the story. Yesterday was no exception. Doc

Ayers and Parson Perryman were the opponents, and both lived up to reputations carned some days since. Ayers was hit safely six times and Perryman three.

In all six runs were scored during the eight and one-half innings played. The total number of hits made were nine. Divided into the legal boxes of which a game is made, Richmond pushed two together in the eighth, and Roanoke two in each, the third and eighth. The two for the invaders in the third brought forth a tally.

It was as weird an exhibition as one will see under any circumstances. Time was when the defensive club could be blamed for anything the opposition achieved. It wasn't so yesterday. All six of the counters marked up were started by the pitchers. Boots, inexcusable boots, explain why neither flinger is given the honor of scoring a shut-out. Perryman for six sessions pitched the brand of ball of which he is capable. Not the semblance of a safe bang had been made by the locals. He had speed and curves, and, better still, he had control. The day was dark, rain falling at frequent intervals, and his fast ball was vastly more deceptive than any kind of twister. He had struck out seven, and there was no one in the park but would have wagered even money that the one run made by Roanoke in the third would prove enough. It was as weird an exhibition as one prove enough.

Ayers was going fairly well himself. At the final count-up it was found that he had been knocked safely six times. he had been knocked safely six times, had given one base on balls, had struck out thirteen and had been scored on just once. But Perry was doing even better, until his final collapse. The attenuated Georgian got along famously until the eighth. In that box the Colts began laying everything down in front of his feet, and the deacen got excited.

Four errors, two hits and some lurid Commonstrations brought five in that tanza. Carter started and was safe when the preacher failed to handle his bunt. The ball was driven straight at the pitcher, and he made a good stab to field it, but in running down the volunteer second baseman he dropped the white ball, and incidentally the second baseman backy. game. Ducky Eherts followed with a hit over second. Mace dumped another at Perry, and he tried to force Carter at third.

As a challenger for the title, and is in hope of arranging a match in the near future.

Wallach is confident that Cross can defeat Ditable 19.

clarke. Sandy then pulled the spec-tacular play of the contest by stealing the battlers—the third for Roanoke and the cighth for Richmond. In the third Ginn for Roanoke bunted to Ayers, and the doctor, in his anxiety, threw to right field, Ginn pulling up at third. He scored when Paul Irmscher hit what was intended to be a waste ball. what was intended to be a waste bail, over second. After that the doctor was never in danger. He got in trouble in the first, walking Gina, letting Pressly hit, and then hitting Summers. But he got out of the hole by causing Irmscher to force Gina at third, striking out Mattis, and forcing McCracken to pop to Bresnahan.

One possible Tiger run was stopped in the ninth, when Mattis tried to go home on a legitimate single and Piezs error, being caught at the plate on a perfect relay from Eberts to Newton to Mace. Irmscher was also caught at the platter in the third by Bresnahan's good throw.

One possible Tiger run was stopped in the ninth, when Mattis tried to go home on a legitimate single and Piez's error, being caught at the plate on a perfect relay from Eberts to Newton to Mace. Irmscher was also caught at the platter in the third by Breamaian's good throw.

Until the eighth the Colts never had a chance to score. Just two had been on bases, and both were caught early. It was a hard game to lose, but Perryman can thank no one but himself for the defeat. Pressly will send Bert Garthy darkness. The President stated shortly before 4 o'clock with Mrs. Wilson and several officers, motoring along the Connecticut Blyer for many miles toward Springfield, N. H., intending to make a wide circuit homeward. They got tangled up in the route, then were overtaken by darkness. The President passed through several small towns, where he was often fecognized, but made no stops except to inquire the route home.

PIRATES WIN ANOTHER

Philadelphia, July 10 .- Pittsburgh won its third successive game from Philadelphia to-day by the score of 3 to 2. McQuillan pitched his first game for the Pirates, and while he was hit harder than Chalmers, he kept the hits scattered, and the Phillies were only able to score in the third and ninth innings. Pittsburgh got to Chalmers in the first inning for three singles and a double, scoring two runs. From that inning to the end of the game they did not get a hit. They scored a run in the third on a pass, stolen base, overthrow and a squeeze but Manager Dooin gave his team. hit. At Perry, and he tried to force Carter at third.

In justice to Perry, his peg was perfect, but Paul Irmscher dropped the throw. This left the cushions soused when Doc Agers, following instructions, laid another one down. Perry tried the play at home, but threw the ball so wide that Riley was forced to straddle the plate, and couldn't land carter.

Bresnahan sent one along the third base line, and Irmscher, throwing to the plater, hit Eberts in the back, and the plate, and then Sandy Piez came through with a triple, clearing the carried from the ringside.

YANKS DEFEAT WHITE SOX

Chicago, July 10—The Yankees defeated the White Sox here to-day, 2 to 1, in a lively and interesting contest. The Chance men made their first tally in the second, when Peckinpaugh singled and scored on Knight's fluke double to centre. The Sox tied it in their half on a hit batter, Warhop's error and a sacrifice fly. The winning tally was scored in the sixth on two hits and a sacrifice fly to right field. Warhop and Russell started the engagement, the latter going all the way and allowing nine hits. Warhop was in fine condition, and in six innings allowed only three hits. McConnell, who pitched the final three rounds, did not allow a hit. Catches by Cree and Wolter in the outfield robbed the Sox of many hits, and probably the game. pitched the final three rounds, did not allow a hit. ## NAPS TRIM ATHLETICS

Cleveland, Ohio, July 10 .- The Naps evened up the series with the Athletics, 4 to 1, to-day, taking the measure of Plank and Houck. The great southpaw gave up two runs in seven innings, giving way to Daley to bat in a pinch. Houck was wild and ineffective in the eighth. Falkenberg pitched one of his good games for the Naps, but was in danger in the second. He weathered the gale, however. In the ninth Mc-

The courts left nothing to be desired and a large and very enthusiastic crowd assembled early. Every stroke played was watched with breathless interest. I was particularly impressed with the enthusiasm of this provincial crowd.

The results were as they should be, but what a surprise it was to us all when Froitsheim led McLoughlin. Every soul on the ground was thrilled, and indicated him to be.

McLoughlin, for some unapparent reason, did not reach his form in the first set, and it was late in the second before he showed that he had reached the form exhibited by him in the British championship last week. During the first two sets the American's "cannon ball" service worked to advantage on rare obsisions, while the German had McLoughlin guessing on many shots. Froitzheim's backhand stroke, as well as his beautiful long high lobs, played havoc with the American's hopes during the early games. An examination of the detailed score shows that McLoughlin lost many of his aces on balls driven into the net. This, coupled with the into the net. This, coupled with the failure of his side line shots to come off as expected, nearly cost him the match, for it was only after games were called at three-all in the thirt set that the American champion steadled down and pulled away from the
